Merit Board to Hear Engstrom

Jake it from Here

The phrase, "The Iron Curtain," has been with us a number of years, and there have been many imitations.

Trite phrases bounce off a battered brain without leaving an impression. But we've found a glittering phrase that doesn't bounce off.

Dr. Alan Gregg, vice president of the Rockefeller Foundation, is worried about a "chromium curtain." He wonders who will survive prosperity.

Dr. Gregg, an educator, physician and father, sees the chromium curtain as one of superficiality, of flashiness, of apparent rather than real values. Such a curtain, he thinks, will isolate us from the rest of the world.

The doctor feels that our schools are vital to our future—but not bargain basement schools:

This is what he says:

One of the things I want to make perfectly clear to you is that the learning process goes on in a child. Whether he is working for it or not, he is absorbing from his environment. He is making his life into an experience that teaches him.

This means that a child can learn a great deal in a very poor school.

Now, if our schools are inadequately staffed and badly equipped what is it that children learn in such a situation?

They learn to live in a bewildered state. They don't understand things and they learn to be callous about that and say, "Well, I'm just dumb," and they hate being dumb.

* * *

They learn, therefore, how to— to escape the teacher's learning how dumb they are, and they learn to avoid being laughed at by their young contemporaries.

They learn also the gentle art of cheating in examinations or in any form of behavior.

They learn to avoid school on any possible pretext, including the goop disease—illness when illness is not really there—and they learn even to run away from school as a prompt and primitive response.

* * *

They learn to question their father's and mother's affection for obliging them to go to such a hateful place and they learn, perhaps worst and most important of all, that nobody really cares about them—and that is the short cut to delinquency.

Thomas Jefferson said about free schooling that a literate electorate is the best safeguard of a democracy. By that he meant quite simply that it is important that voters should be able to read and write in order to express themselves and to understand the conditions about which their opinion is to be final.

* * *

I think it is perhaps important for us to remember that the Soviet Government was the first government in the history of Russia to bring the privilege of widespread and free education to the mass of the people.

We cannot neglect that. We cannot compete satisfactorily with a nation that does its very best for education while we are beginning to see if we can't save a bit here and there by diminishing the attention and the support we give to education.

We approach the time, I think, when the struggle for survival will be along a quite different line. It will be "Who will survive prosperity?"

And in this point, I'm very sure we don't want to put our children—and in that sense put the next generation—behind what I would call the chromium curtain. The curtain of superficiality, of flashiness, of apparent rather than real values.

* * *

The chromium curtain will isolate us from all of the rest of the world.

We can't get our education in the bargain basement. There is no cheap way to do it.

It will be important for us to remember that we can have what we want—only, if we get something cheap and unsatisfactory, there will be, so to speak, a buying on the installment plan, but a buying of trouble and not satisfaction.

Dulles Assails Red Leaders For Acts During Asian Visit

Says They Stir Hate, Prejudice

Replies to Critics Attacking Stand on Goa Colony Muddle

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles today sharply assailed Soviet leaders for what he termed stirring up an atmosphere of hatred and prejudice against the West on their visit to Asia.

Dulles told a news conference that remarks by Soviet Premier Bulganin and party chief Nikita Khrushchev appeared to be a move to encourage use of force by India against the Portuguese colony of Goa.

Such remarks by Soviet leaders, who are now in Burma, show no great desire to lower tensions with the West, he said.

Dulles added that to this extent the anti-Western criticisms have damaged what survives of the friendlier East-West relations growing out of last July's summit meeting.

Wants Settlement

The secretary stressed that the United States wants both India and Portugal to settle their dispute over Goa peacefully, without resort to force. India's Prime Minister Nehru, he said, certainly shares this view.

Dulles said the main purpose of a statement he issued Friday with Portugal's foreign minister—one which aroused angry reaction in India—was to lessen the emotionalism built up by Russia's leaders by their comments on Goa.

Dulles said he feels these Russian statements were designed to create an atmosphere which would provoke use of force in the dispute. These Soviet statements were an attempt to inject prejudice and hatred into the controversy, he declared.

Other Matters

On other matters, Dulles said:

The West will hold Russia fully responsible for rail and barge movements from West Germany to Berlin, regardless of the Soviet decision to give East German Communists the right to license barge trips to the divided city.

Prime Minister Eden's scheduled Jan. 30 meeting with President Eisenhower is a normal development of close British-American cooperation. No agenda has yet been agreed upon but the two leaders will talk about most matters of common concern.

In reply to questions about Goa, Dulles said that as far as he knows the whole world regards it as a Portuguese province, even the Indian government.

U.S. Defenses Given Surprise

Result of Mock Air Raid 'Classified Information'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Flying units scrambled aloft and civilian volunteers sped to ground observer posts Monday night in a surprise coast-to-coast trial of U. S. and Canadian defenses against mass air attack.

The alert was called off at 7:06 a.m., EST today, with no more advance word than was given on the order to man interceptor planes and spotter posts. That came well after nightfall in the East Monday night.

Air Force and Air National Guard offices were as secretive on the outcome of the exercise as they had been on its timing.

The test, called "Operation Crackerjack" was directed by the Air Defense Command, headquartered at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Results Secret

A public information officer said all information was "pretty well classified" but the results will be evaluated and a summary released in two or three weeks.

Notice that the "raiding" was over came from the Strategic Air Command whose big bombers provided the "enemy" force.

There was no immediate list of targets nor estimate of the defenders' degree of success in warding off attack.

Involved in the operation were units of the regular U. S. Air Force, the Air Reserve, the Air National Guard, Navy and Marines, in addition to Canadian forces and some 400,000 members of the Ground Observer Corps.

The fact that there would be such a test within a three-month period had been announced, but the actual timing was not known even to top officers of the Air Guard.

In Air Quickly

The test was run under a blanket of virtual secrecy, but fragmentary information indicated that interceptor jets on the East and West coasts scrambled skyward minutes after the mock attackers—planes of the U. S. Strategic Air Command—were detected heading their way.

Officers said the main purpose of the drill is to check on the effectiveness of radar tracking and interceptor defenses under winter conditions.

In New York, a spokesman for the Eastern Defense Command at Stewart Air Force Base said mythical enemy attackers swept "in force" from over the Atlantic. He said the first wave of "attackers" was met by personnel who normally man the all-weather jets based along the Eastern Seaboard.

"Real Fast"

In Washington state, an operations officer with the 25th Air Division at McChord Air Force Base said interceptors throughout the area were "real fast" in getting into the air.

From O'Hare Field near Chicago came word that the alert—which was sprung with only long-range and general advance warning—caught "virtually no pilots . . . unaware."

Real Reason Hidden, Says Policeman

Sterling Captain Says Charges 'Dug Up' by Chief Brown

STERLING — (Special) — State Police Capt. Henry Engstrom indicated today that the real reason for his suspension last month as battalion commander of Districts 1 and 7 has not been made public.

He said, in a telephone interview with an Evening Telegraph reporter, "These charges (the four detailed charges filed against him by Chief Phil Brown) are not the charges that caused my suspension."

Engstrom added, "They were dug up after Brown announced my suspension."

The state Police Merit Board will conduct a hearing on Brown's charges at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday in the Centennial building, Springfield.

List Charges

Engstrom is charged with "conduct unbecoming an officer, insubordination and disrespect for a superior officer."

The detailed charges are:

1. As commander of Battalion 7 with supervision of Police Districts 1 and 7, he failed to give equal attention to both units and failed to permit Lt. Ray Cramer to assume his duties as commander of District 1.

2. On Feb. 21 he used "coarse, profane and abusive language" to Cramer and Sgts. Phillip M. Schermerborn and Robert S. Heindel (all of the Sterling district), and failed to treat Cramer with "civility and respect."

3. On numerous occasions Engstrom made "remarks and statements affronting, cursing and otherwise abusing other Illinois state police officers, resulting in the lowering of morale and discreting the division of state highway police."

Left Command

4. He failed to make regular monthly inspections of his units and on Sept. 27 he left his command for six hours without notifying his superiors.

The Merit Board is empowered to demote or remove an officer or suspend him for a maximum of 180 days.

When asked if he thought the charges were in reprisal for his efforts to enforce state gambling laws in Bureau county, he answered, "I don't know but I do know there must be some reason for my suspension."

British Made Agreement On Barges, They Reveal

Grant East Germans Right To Control Water Traffic

LONDON (AP)—The foreign office disclosed today that Britain has recognized the right of Communist East German authorities to control barge traffic through the East zone of Germany.

Until recently, Soviet occupation authorities were responsible for day-to-day administration of canal traffic.

A Foreign Office spokesman told a news conference that interzonal barge traffic "as a whole is functioning normally."

He said that approximately 60 applications for permits for barge traffic between Berlin and West Germany are outstanding with East German authorities since the Russians announced they were turning over control of the waterways to East German authorities. The waterways terminate in the British occupation zone.

The spokesman added that this had resulted "in somewhat alarmist reports of the situation" suggesting that the Soviets had taken new actions to hinder free access through East German territory from the West.

He said Soviet authorities last October informed the British Embassy in Bonn that they were switching responsibility for issuing permits for interzonal barge traffic to the East German Communist regime.

The spokesman said British Authorities immediately acknowledged that Soviet signature for

Five Young Sisters Perish As Fire Hits Benton Home

BENTON, Ill. (AP)—Five young sisters perished today in an explosion and fire that destroyed their home and critically burned their mother and another sister. Two brothers and the children's grandfather escaped through a window of the blazing three-room house.

The house was one of several that sprang up around the now abandoned middle fork coal mine, two miles east of Benton.

The dead were children of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Wingo, who are separated. They were identified as Nancy, 15, Neva June, 8, Marla, 7, and twins Carolyn and Marolyn, 5.

Hospitalized with critical burns are the mother, Ruby, 48, and another daughter, Agnes, 14.

Mrs. Wingo's father, Charles Neunlist, 78, and the family's two boys, Muriel, 13, and Truman, 11, were unhurt. Neunlist told authorities he heard the explosion, roused the two boys sleeping with him and shoved them through a window to safety.

George Rose of Ewing, a passing motorist, said he saw the house burst into flame. He and a companion hurried to the scene and found Mrs. Wingo and daughter Agnes outside the house, their clothes and hair aflame. The two men rolled the victims in rugs to snuff the fire and hailed another motorist who summoned firemen from Benton.

Rose said he could hear the cries of the five young girls trapped inside. "Then the house just went poof," he said.

Coroner Barney Browning said a coal stove explosion was the probable cause of the blaze. A kerosene can was found in front of the stove when firemen searched the ruins.

The fire occurred about 6:30 a.m.

Goodfellow Fund Over $300 Mark

The Goodfellows fund climbed to $319.22 today and would-be contributors are reminded that much more will be needed if the Dixon area's needy families are to have a merry Christmas.

The Goodfellow list, now being checked by volunteer workers, is surprisingly large. It would surprise you to know that many children need your boost despite the apparent prosperous times.

Contributors may send their checks or cash to the Goodfellow Fund, Dixon Evening Telegraph, and be assured that every dollar will be put to good use.

Rail Worker Found Dead Near Oregon

OREGON —(Special)— A railroad worker, Ben Good, 43, 810 Franklin St., Oregon, was found dead in his car on the blacktop road to Daysville about two miles southeast of Oregon early today.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Ed Lang, who investigated the death, said a hose had been connected to the auto's exhaust pipe and directed into the car through a ventilator window.

Good reportedly was last seen alive when he left an Oregon tavern about 11 p.m. Monday.

Walter Spangler, Daysville, was driving from his home to Oregon when he noticed Good's car parked near a railroad viaduct about 7 a.m. today. He investigated, found Good's body and called authorities.

Coroner M. M. Roe, Forreston, has scheduled an inquest Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Farrell Funeral Home in Oregon. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

Good, employed by the Great Western railroad as a section hand, was born Dec. 30, 1911. He is survived by his widow, Velma, and a daughter, Carol, about 10.

Treasurer Warren Wright May Be Foe of Stratton

CHICAGO (AP)—State Treasurer Warren E. Wright, who can't seek a second term, says he is going to run for either governor or secretary of state next year.

Wright, a Republican, told The Associated Press late Monday by telephone from Springfield that he plans to buck the organization of Gov. William G. Stratton in seeking an office on the ticket.

He said there is no possibility he will ask a deal of Stratton for an appointive state post after his two year term expires in January, 1957.

"I'm not on the team," said Wright. "I haven't asked to be on the team. I'm going to run for either governor or secretary of state, and that's definite."

Second Term Barred

The state treasurer is barred by law from seeking reelection to a second successive term.

Wright declined comment on whether his decision had anything to do with reports of dissatisfaction over what one bloc of members of the Cook County Republican Central Committee have called Chairman Edward F. Moore's "high-handed" methods.

The committee meets Friday to select a sub-committee for preparation of a county slate for the April 10 primary.

One Central Committee member said "there will be a fuss if Moore takes appointments upon himself as he has done in the past.

Stratton to Run

As of now, all present elective state officers except Wright are expected to seek another term.

This would put Gov. Stratton in the field with Lt. Gov. John William Chapman, Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier, State Auditor Orville Hodge, Atty. Gen. Latham Castle, and Supreme Court Clerk Lula Searcy, widow of the late court clerk, Earle Benjamin Searcy, whom she succeeded by appointment of Gov. Stratton.

Elmer J. Hoffman, former state treasurer who preceded Wright, has announced for his old job.

Stratton was unavailable for comment on Wright's announcement.

Cities Should Fluoridate Their Water: ADA Head

NEW YORK (AP)— The president of the American Dental Assn. says cities that do not fluoridate their water to fight tooth decay "are simply failing in their responsibility to the public."

Dr. Bernard C. Kingsbury of San Francisco told a New York Dental meeting Monday night that fluoridation is a simple, inexpensive and successful procedure and is the most "thoroughly tested" health aid in history. He said 22 million persons now drink fluoride-treated water.

Sen. Langer Will Press Deeper Into Dixon-Yates

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Langer (R-ND) said today he will press his demand for a public investigation to show whether backers of the now-repudiated Dixon-Yates contract contributed to President Eisenhower's 1952 campaign fund.

In a surprise move Monday Langer demanded that a Senate Antimonopoly subcommittee on which he serves subpoena Postmaster General Summerfield, who was Republican national chairman in 1952; Sherman Adams, top White House aide; Stephen A. Mitchell, the 1952 Democratic national chairman, and others.

Form of Resolutions

His request was in the form of a handful of resolutions filed with the subcommittee at a public hearing. It is investigating what Chairman Kefauver (D-Tenn) termed "a criminal side" of the contract negotiations.

Kefauver said Langer's resolutions might be considered by the three-member subcommittee today but probably any decision would have to be passed on by the full Antimonopoly subcommittee.

He said that Dec. 16 had been tentatively set for a resumption of his group's public hearings.

At issue is a contract negotiated at Eisenhower's orders and under which a utility firm headed by Edgar H. Dixon and Eugene A. Yates would have sold electric power to the Atomic Energy Commission for the Tennessee Valley Authority to replace TVA current consumed at atomic installations.

Pact Cancelled

The 107-million-dollar contract between AEC and the Dixon-Yates group was canceled after the city of Memphis, Tenn., one of TVA's big customers, announced it would build its own power plant.

Then last month the AEC repudiated the contract entirely on a legal opinion that "there is a substantial question as to whether there were material violations of law and public policy."

Langer proposed that Summerfield be asked about any utility contributions to the 1952 Republican campaign fund made with "the Dixon-Yates contract in mind."

Adams should be asked, he said, about any Dixon-Yates contributions to his earlier campaign for governor of New Hampshire, and "in all fairness," Mitchell should be asked about possible Dixon-Yates contributions to the 1952 campaign of Adlai E. Stevenson for president.

Decline Comment

Langer acted after both AEC Chairman Lewis L. Strauss and Budget Director Rowland Hughes had declined to tell the subcommittee whether they had discussed matters concerning the contract with White House officials.

But Hughes contended "there was nothing phoney, or dishonest, or any conspiracy with anybody."

Ralph H. Demmler, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission from June 1953 until May 25, 1955, testified at Monday night's subcommittee hearing that he had attended three conferences at the White House relating to the Dixon-Yates contract.

He said, however, that no one in the executive branch of the government sought to influence the SEC's decision in passing on the financing arrangements for the power project.

Squeezing the bag forces an anesthetic, or pure oxygen, into the patient's lungs. Dr. Robert A. It can also be used in the home as a resuscitator by some heart patients.

Admits He Slew Wife In Quarrel

CHICAGO (AP) — A wealthy Austrian has admitted, police said, beating his wife to death in their fashionable Lake Shore Drive apartment during a quarrel.

Marcus Kammermann, 66, was held without charge today after the admission in German to Detective Frank Bychowski.

Kammermann's wife, Malwina, 55, died in American Hospital Monday after police broke down the door of their apartment and found her crumped on the floor with Kammerman standing over her.

Bychowski quoted Kammermann as saying he beat his wife with ash trays, lamps, a seltzer bottle and almost every loose object he could lay his hands on.

He told Bychowski his wife had "cleaned out" their bank account of $60,000 to $70,000 and told him she wanted a divorce.

Kammermann, a cigarette, and candy importer, and his wife emigrated to the United States from Austria in 1951.

Bychowski said Kammermann gave this version:

He returned Friday from a business trip to Europe and decided "something was wrong" because his wife did not greet him with a kiss. After she told him about withdrawing the money and wanting a divorce they started a quarrel which was climaxed Monday at about 5 a.m. when he began striking her with the objects.

Policemen John Griffin and Earl Johnson, in response to neighbors calls, broke open the door and seized Kammermann almost two hours later.

Negroes Boycott Busses in Protest to Segregation Move

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—A boycott which cut Negro patronage of city buses by about 85 per cent Monday was in force again today and showed signs of continuing even longer.

Police investigated a report by Manager J. H. Bagley of the Montgomery city bus lines that a small-caliber rifle bullet struck the rear of a bus last night in a Negro district.

A hymn-singing Negro throng estimated by police at 5,000 shouted approval Monday night when spokesmen urged them to continue the boycott in protest to segregated transportation facilities.

The issue was brought to a head by the arrest Thursday of Mrs. Rosa Parks, 42, who refused to move to the rear of a bus. She was fined $14 Monday for violating a state law requiring Negroes to sit in the rear of buses. Later she was released in $100 bond after announcing she would appeal the fine.

The crowd at the mass meeting shouted approval of a resolution which said the boycott would continue until bus patrons are no longer "intimidated, embarrassed and coerced."

Negro spokesmen said a "delegation of citizens" is ready to meet with city and bus line officials in an effort to develop a "satisfactory and equitable" program.

They did not indicate if they might settle for anything short of an outright end to segregation in city buses.

Despite a cold drizzle throughout most of Monday, thousands of Negroes who normally ride the buses refused to board them. They either stayed home from work, walked or caught rides in jammed Negro taxis.

Union Officer Asks Charges Be Cancelled

CHICAGO (AP)—A union officer accused of conspiring to extort $100,000 from the Chicago poultry market has asked the U. S. Court of Appeals to cancel his forthcoming trial.

Joseph P. (Joey) Glimco, 47, is to go on trial in U. S. District Court Jan. 23. He and four other Chicago men have pleaded innocent to conspiring against the poultry industry.

Glimco was an officer of an AFL Teamsters local.

In a petition filed Monday in the Appellate Court, Glimco's attorney, Barnabas F. Sears, gave this reason for cancellation of the trial:

"The indictment against Glimco violates the Sixth Amendment to the Constitution in that it is so vague that it fails to inform the defendant of the nature and cause of the accusation against him."

Sewer Blast Adds Realism To Air Alert

DETRAIT (AP)— While North America was alerted in a test of air defenses Monday night, it looked on Detroit's Woodward Avenue as if an enemy were attacking from underground.

Explosions rattled this shopping main stem over a six-mile stretch. Manhole covers were flung into the air, some as high as 20 feet, and roaring flames flashed from the uncovered manhole mouths.

One manhole cover hit a passing automobile underneath and another narrowly missed a streetcar, but no one was injured.

Police said the explosions were caused by an accumulation of leaking gas in sewers and conduits, set off by a short circuit in an underground electric line.

Nancy Turner And Julius to Be Honored

URBANA — The University of Illinois College of Agriculture plans a day-long salute to Champaign County neighbor Nancy Turner, her family and her Grand Champion Angus steer, Julius, when they return from New York City Thursday.

Dean Louis B. Howard of the College of Agriculture said today that Nancy and her family are being asked to be guests of honor of the university and the Champaign-Urbana communities Thursday "in tribute to the young 4-H Club members contribution to superior husbandry in agriculture."

Julius, the Grand Champion of the International Livestock Exposition, will be on public display throughout the day and evening in the University's Stock Pavilion on the campus, and town and farm "neighbors" are invited to see the steer and to visit the proud young lady who raised him and guided him to the top in the livestock world. The visit of the Grand Champion steer has been arranged through the offices of restaurant owner Howard Johnson, who paid $15 a pound for the animal in Chicago Thursday.

The steer's visit to the University of Illinois will be the first of a series of calls at agricultural colleges in the Midwest.

Dean Howard said tentative plans also are being made to have the sire and dam of the champion Angus on display in the Stock Pavilion so that visitors will have an opportunity to study the breeding background of the outstanding offspring.

Whistling Swans Land for Rest on California Lake

VENTURA, Calif. (AP)—A flock of whistling swans, blown off course en route to the South Atlantic for the winter, landed for a rest and food on Lake Sherwood in the Santa Monica Mountains.

Once seen over most of North America, the big swans now breed chiefly in northwest Canada and Alaska. They migrate to the Southern coastal states in winter. Their route ordinarily is far north of here.

The whistling swan is distinguished by a light musical note for a call and sometimes is referred to as a whooping crane.

Boyle's on The Side Of Gravity

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Curbstone comments of a pavement Plato:

Can you recall, as a child, how you liked to stretch out on a small grassy hill, and then roll down?

Can you remember how, when you reached the bottom, mind reeling, you had a strange feeling of terror that you were about to fly off into space—and how you dug small hands into the sweet-smelling earth and hugged it hard to keep this from happening?

I have this same feeling on reading that the U.S. government is sponsoring research to find a way to counteract gravity.

Favors Gravity

In this battle of science versus gravity I am pretty much on the side of gravity.

Gravity is one of man's oldest and best friends. It may set him down hard occasionally, but at least he knows where it will set him down. But science? I don't know. If science takes over gravity, it is hard to figure where we'll all be set down eventually.

Gravity was a fact of life long before, as legend has it, an apple dropped on Sir Isaac Newton's noggin. All Newton did was to get up and single-handed pass the law of gravity.

This law has been more influential than any statute ever passed by Congress.

It has kept the sun and moon and earth in a whirling balance for a time beyond the memory of man.

It holds Clark Gable's ears in place, and is a big factor in keeping Marilyn Monroe in her present pleasant shape.

Hopes It's Kept

If science does come up with a new antigravity force or substance I hope they keep it under laboratory control and don't sell it like cotton candy at a circus.

If they do, I predict chaos. The skies above our streets will be full of lunatic jaywalkers dropping chewed-up apple cores on the heads of us old-fashioned innocent pedestrians. Dastardly peeping Toms will be leering in the 12th story windows of apartment buildings. Frantic mothers will be bawling up into the air, "Junior, you come down off that cloud right now, and fly to the groceny store for me. I'm sorry I ever bought you those antigravity shoes."

Frankly speaking, do you feel the human race is ready to do away with gravity? The thing we need to do most in our troubled era is to keep both feet solidly on the ground. In this gravity is a big help.

Labor Secretary Says Labor Has Duty t oEnter Politics

NEW YORK (AP)—Secretary of Labor Mitchell said today organized labor has both a duty and responsibility to speak out with a "loud and clear" voice in politics.

Mitchell's remarks prepared for the convention of the merged AFL-CIO indicated, however, that he expects labor support to be given to Republican party policies rather than to those of Democrats.

His speech, like one delivered by President Eisenhower Monday to convention delegates via a long-distance hookup from Eisenhower's Gettysburg headquarters, said labor unions have a right to deal in political issues.

Eisenhower said that in such expression the rights of minorities in unions having "differing social, economic and political views must be scrupulously protected and their views accurately reflected."

Answer Fears

The President and his labor Cabinet officer appeared to be answering, in part at least, the expressed fears of some Republicans that unions are taking too active a political role. The speeches also signaled an administration effort to vie actively with the Democrats for the labor vote in the 1956 campaign.

Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, a potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination next year, said in another speech prepared for the convention today that "we need more, not less, participation by working men and women in American political affairs."

Sees Opportunity

Harriman saw "a glorious opportunity" to increase national production by 50 per cent in the next decade and thereby improve living conditions. But "to get this expansion, we must have wise and progressive policies," he said.

"It is up to labor to make its voice heards to be sure we have those policies," he added.

Mitchell said AFL-CIO leaders have denied they will "try to control the votes of union members" but will keep members informed on political issues. Nobody, he said, can object to that kind of political activity.

He said he expects the 16-million-member labor federation to support Eisenhower administration labor policies.

Eisenhower's address was hailed as a "very fine message" by AFL-CIO President George Meany. Walter Reuther, former CIO chief now an AFL-CIO vice president, said, "It refutes completely the Goldwater line."

Reuther referred to Sen. Goldwater (R-Ariz), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, who has spearheaded a Republican group critical of union political activity.

Charges Slush Funds

Goldwater has charged the AFL-CIO plans "slush funds" to capture control of the government through the Democratic party. He has said the AFL-CIO has no right to endorse a presidential candidate.

Both Meany and Reuther have told the more than 1,400 delegates to the founding AFL-CIO convention that they intend stepped-up political activity but are wedded to neither party.

90-Minute TV Programs Here to Stay

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—The trend of television programing in 1956 now appears fairly well defined. It will be a year when the program of 90 minutes and longer is commonplace.

This, it seems to me, is a healthy development for both the industry and the viewing public. As far as the industry is concerned big programs—in concept as well as length—are a strong answer to the proponents of pay-see TV. A public that already has a variety of feature-length entertainment on its TV screens is not likely to enjoy the prospect of paying to see unknown quality feature-length entertainment on the same set.

Some observers believe that the networks' bitter opposition to pay-see TV has inspired the trend to bigger programs. The motive is unimportant. What matters is that the public is benefiting with a variety of more imaginative programs than it saw a year and more ago.

Within the 90-minute format television has demonstrated it can hold both the lazy or I-only-want-to-be-amused audience and the alert or let-me-think-about-this audience. It's demonstrating its holding power weekly with a variety of 90-minute programs that would have been amazing a few years ago.

New Ingredient in the Stew

France for once has offered a new twist to a nation and a world weary of endless cabinet crises. This time the defeated premier, Edgar Faure, brought the house down with him.

So the lawmakers who did Faure in by voting "no confidence" in his regime find they must stand for re-election this coming Jan. 8.

It seems there's an old law on the books which says that when a cabinet falls twice within 18 months, the National Assembly may be dissolved and new elections ordered. With a show of nerve and perhaps no little spite, Faure invoked it. And for the first time in 78 years the lawmakers will have to face the voters before their normal terms have expired (next June).

As usual in French politics, complex personal and political rivalries lay at the root of this newest government collapse. Pierre Mendes-France, Faure's predecessor in office and a member of the same Radical Socialist party, has been working steadily to regain power.

Recognizing this, Faure had proposed to advance the June election by six months, hoping thus to forestall Mendes-France's bid. It was generally believed it would take the latter about that long to weld together the Center-Left coalition he has been building.

In that grouping are some Socialists, other non-Communist Leftists, and about half the Radical Socialists.

Supporting Faure were most of the other Radical Socialists and various other party elements to the right of center.

The forces behind Mendes-France evidently felt they were on pretty sure ground when they struck down Faure's regime. But he foxed them by digging out the law that had lain in disuse since 1877. Now Faure gets what he wants—an early election.

Whether a newly elected assembly will give him or some other Right-Center leader the chance for a more stable government is anybody's guess. The new election will be held under a 1951 law that favors alliances in the Center at the expense of extremes of Right and Left. But Faure's action has badly split his own party, and it is hard at this stage to measure what sort of alignment may emerge from the January balloting.

Probably it is best to take a cheerful outlook. Government in France could hardly be more unstable, so perhaps it may get better. Hope springs eternal that the French may one day tire of their silly parliamentary merry-go-round and put in lawmakers whose purpose is to govern long and responsibly under a far-sighted leadership.

The Doctor Says:

Causes for Rheumatism Gradually Being Pinpointed

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

A correspondent writes that she would be very much interested in "my version" of muscular rheumatism. She says that she has been told that she has it.

I do not have a "version" of muscular rheumatism. Rheumatism is a rather old-fashioned name which formerly was used for a whole raft of conditions now known as arthritis, neuritis, fibrositis, or some other more specific term.

The march of science has gone on and it no longer satisfies careful doctors to call so many conditions just plain rheumatism.

WHEN THE WORD is still used, however, it generally refers to those muscular pains and aches which may develop in almost any part of the body and from any one of several different causes and which will not fit into the classification for more specific disorders.

Nearly everyone at one time or another has suffered with such kinds of muscular rheumatism. A draft blowing down the back or neck may be enough to set it off. Muscular aches and pains often accompany or follow infections such as sore throats or influenza. Toxic substances absorbed from diseased tonsils or an abscessed tooth not infrequently produce rheumatism.

Muscular pains which feel exactly the same as rheumatism often come after one has given hard use to muscles which were soft and flabby or after one has maintained a poor posture for a long period of time.

IN OTHER WORDS, there are still some things left for which the label of rheumatism is about as good as anything else. A rose by any other name would smell as sweet.

Rheumatism of any cause is uncomfortable and a thousand different treatments have been tried. Many, if not most, get well of themselves. In others the cause can be traced an delimnated. But some go on and on until the victim without his or her rheumatism seems like a different person.

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE here to list all the treatments which have been suggested. But I have received inquiries about bee stings or the substance which the bee injects when she stings. This remedy is as old as the hills. Even some doctors who have investigated it think that it is helpful—at least sometimes.

I remember as a boy an elderly beekeeper who had what was called rheumatism and who was all crippled up in the winter but who claimed to be much improved in the spring when he got out with the bees and was stung a few times. I never could make up my mind whether his improvement was caused by the stings or by the warmer air of springtime. I still don't know.

In Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)— There's a box-office code for everything these days—even for movie monsters.

Make-up whiz Bud Westmore flashed me the latest word from Universal - International studio's chamber of horrors.

Bud spends a lot of time there.

It's furnished with a big oven for baking ogres and cluttered with tasty items like a sculptured version of an exposed brain, death masks, a handsome specimen of a tarantula in a jar of formaldehyde and a printed sign that asks: "Have You Smiled Today?"

The ghoulish, one-eyed Glob in "It Came From Outer Space"; the monstrous Mutants in "This Island Earth" and the half-human, half-fish Gill Man of "The Creature From the Black Lagoon," its sequel, "Return of the Creature," and its sequel, "The Creature Walks Among Us," are Bud's most recent scalp crawlers.

"BUT OUR LITTLE COMMUNITY is growing," he said as he affectionately patted a nine-foot replica of a prehistoric lizard that had just slid out of his plastic rubber baking oven.

"This kid," he said, "hits stardom in a film titled 'Land Unknown.' Moviegoers will love him."

That's the secret. Westmore explained, about movie monsters.

"A monster," Bud assured me, "can't be too grotesque or he might draw a laugh. One laugh at the wrong time and you're dead. Sure, he should scare people, but at the same time he should be pleasant enough to draw a little affection or sympathy once in a while."

THE BEST MONSTERS. Westmore continued, are based on spiders, grasshoppers and bugs.

"Women and children," he said, "fear them most. We found out that the maximum of menace can be attained, too, by eliminating the nose. By making the nose oversized the monster gets too much sympathy."

Fur-bearing ogres, says Westmore, are out. They remind people of their pets.

"Our monsters never capitalize on a typical human deformity, either."

So far none of Westmore's monsters have had to speak dialog.

Like the old model T Ford, though, they wheeze, rumble, creak, hum, gasp and growl.

"But their noises," he says, "have to deliver a message. Even a grunt is emotional."

OGRE - INVENTING requires considerable research.

Westmore has pored through books on life in the ocean depths, zoology, psychology, geology, human anatomy and even chemistry for formulas in casting nightmarish outer skins.

But his job, he says, doesn't give him nightmares.

"I still dream," he grinned, "about beautiful girls."

Westmore probably has drawn more public praise for his ability to make beautiful women even more beautiful on the screen. His family has been in that business for years. He's the first Westmore to combine beauty secrets with ghoulish monsters.

He appreciates their lack of temperament. Westmore monsters can't talk back to directors, complain to agents, demand bigger dressing rooms or go on sit-down strikes for more money. Gentle people, really.

Westbrook Pegler

There was a fashion show one night in the Hotel Petersburg, the beautiful house of isolation on the Rhine where the federal German government entertains foreign potentates and secretaries of defense and commerce shopping for railroad equipment, farm machinery, automobiles and all such stuff. For two days, little Erik Weck, the upstairs waiter, had been advertising the gala in his excited firecracker splutter.

Westbrook Pegler

There would be many beautiful young mannequins from Paris. Rich people from the Ruhr would converge on the Petersburg to drink wine and devour delicacies. The reception desk printed special invitations and published a limited number of cards of admission.

The word spread down through Bonn, Bad Godesberg and Mehlem, the string of capital cities at the water level where the social life of the government and diplomatic corps and the resident journalists is dull and difficult.

There are acres and acres of cabbage and orchards, yielding gnarly apples, in this capital area. The busy freight lines, augmenting the Rhine barge traffic, bang away day and night carrying the products of the heavy industry of the Ruhr across level intersections of the ordinary motor roads. And frankly, the old residents of Bonn, like the ancient cliff-dwellers of Washington, are aloof toward these strangers.

As the U. S. State Department observed in an official publication describing Bonn as the Federal Republic's "national village," the relationship is purely one of proximity," like soapsuds floating on water.

Robert P. Ball, the author of this highly unconventional slate paper, wrote: "A local reporter told me that the Bonners accepted the news that their city had become the federal capital with indifference. The out-of-town reporters who had come to describe scenes of wild rejoicing had to invent the scenes themselves. Accustomed to garrisons for centuries, the Bonners seem to look on the federal officials and their families, the lobbyists and hangers-on as something akin to a new garrison. They seem to say 'You don't disturb me in my heavenly calm'."

Cologne, Dusseldorf and the many other industrial cities of the Rhur are rich again with a prosperity which is reflected in clotted traffic on the autobahns, consisting largely of new cars and, importantly, of small, cheap family rigs. These modest jobs lack the floral beauty and weight, power and space of the current American style. But they satisfy the people's pride of ownership and provide fast transpotation.

Among the element well described by Mr. Ball as hangers-on, there is a sense of disrespect for the new-rich magnates and executives of the Ruhr. This is not quite fair. If these people were to stay behind suburban hedges and drive about on their errands in surrey buggies, they would be criticized for excessive thrift. As it stands, they are the kind of new rich people that we saw in Palm Beach and the Miamis, tearing up money, betting high at many luxurious spielbanks and in general, sending it back, as our June-bug aristocracy liked to say in the era of wonderful nonsense before 1929.

The gathering of the beauty and chivalry of the Ruhr at the Petersburg fashion show that night was a little mystifying. The dinner consisted of snatches of chicken, served largely by extra waiters from the towns down along the river. The women were not stylish, few of them wore jewels and they seemed to be spectators rather than customers. There were some secondary diplomats from the embassies and a few correspondents of the capital corps. The males were, on the average, frumpy. There was little traffic toward the desk where the producer of the display was sitting for orders.

France and Germany have been bleeding each other since memory runneth not to the contrary, but here was a French house, the House of Fath, of Paris, sashaying and swishing down the aisles of the grand salon between banks of tables now laden with champagne bottles like the pins on a bowling alley, showing those rich, oafish heines that grace and chic were.

A coat of mink lined with ermine evoked joyous murmurs as a beautiful young woman with a glazed expression strolled with pinched, professional steps to a measured point in the room, stopped pirouetted and swung open the coat revealing the ermine. Price, $8,000. But there were German and American cars parked outside the Petersburg which cost more.

There was a Mrs. Spelvin sitting on the aisle, an American, married to a husband with a difficult side. She applauded every girl on every appearance, especially a small brunette with a curious little swagger and a pretty twist of her mouth as she smiled. Mrs. Spelvin elbowed her husband.

"Why don't you applaud?" she said. "Applaud what?" he said. "Do you think I ought to applaud the babes because they are pretty? They can't help that. God did that. Do you want me to applaud God?"

"It is done," she said.

Mrs. Spelvin persisted, "Oh, come on, applaud. Everybody else is."

The small brunette came down the aisle again and Mr. Spelvin succumbed. He patted his palms.

The brunette grinned at Mrs. Spelvin, "Thank you for gettin that lump off his hands."

Next afternoon little Erik reported that the show was on the road for a stand at Dusseldorf.

"That-that-that one," he chattered, "that cute one with the funny smile. She is an American girl."

Kitchen, Like Optopus, Is Taking Over Entire House

If the architects and furniture designers don't quit thinking up new uses for the living room, housewives are someday going to revolt and demand the return of the old-fashioned, ready-for-company parlor.

First they robbed us of the dining room, taking one end of the parlor for a "dining alcove."

Then they started making two-purpose furniture, so that the davenport could turn into a bed, thereby converting the living room into a bedroom for overnight guests. There's a table that can be folded up to make a desk so that Papa doesn't need a separate study. There are cabinets that turn out to be bars so that the living room can be turned into a cocktail lounge.

IT'S TIME FOR WOMEN TO TALK BACK

As if that isn't enough for one poor, tired, overcrowded room an industrial designer, Dave Chapman by name, says the next step that he and others like him will take is "to bring the kitchen into the living room."

When and if the designers succeed in doing that we might just as well start building one-room houses. Or, of course, we could get our backs up and say firmly that, just like Grandma, we want to sit in a parlor, eat in a dining room, cook in a kitchen, do our serious thinking and reading in a study, and sleep in a bedroom.

Great-great-great Grandma was mighty happy when she could get out of a one-room sod hut or log cabin and into a house with the privacy and dignity of separate rooms for separate functions.

And the woman of tomorrow may be just as happy to retreat to the privacy of partitioned living if the designers don't stop moving everything into the living room.

Widolff, Mann Nuptials Are Mendota Event

Rosepoint lace and nylon tulle over satin fashioned the gown worn by Carol Mann as the bride of Joseph Widolff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Widolff, Rt. 1, West Brooklyn. The Nov. 26, bride is a daughter of the Raymond Manns, Mendota.

Bouquets of mums were used in decorating Holy Cross Church, Mendota, for the morning wedding. Rev. Leo J. Wissing officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father the lovely bride wore a dress styled with a fitted bodice, long tapered sleeves, and decollete neckline. The full, bouffant floor length skirt was trimmed with bands of lace which formed front and back points.

Cross Is Gift

The bride's fingertip veil of imported silk illusion was held by a tiara of rhinestones, seed pearls and iridescent sequins. Her only jewelry was a gold cross, gift from the bridegroom, and she carried out the tradition of something old, new, borrowed and blue, also a penny in her shoe. The bride's bouquet was of white carnations.

As maid of honor, Miss June Adell Sloter, Troy Grove, wore a floor length gown of pink nylon tulle over taffeta. Tiny rhinestones graced the frock and she wore a matching tiara. Her bouquet was of white, pink and green carnations.

William Widolff, Ohio, served his brother as best man and Wayne Mann, Mendota, brother of the bride, and Raymond Joerger, Mendota, cousin of the bridegroom, ushered.

Child Attendants

Debra Garland, Mendota, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Her pastel orchid frock was of sheer nylon with a full, ruffled skirt, trimmed in small clusters of flowers. She carried a basket of rose petals which she scattered in the bride's path.

Gary Rich, Mendota, nephew of the bride, was ring bearer.

The bride's mother wore a navy blue crepe dress with white accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore a navy dress also. Their corsages were of white baby mums and red carnations.

Over 200 At Reception

A reception for nearly 250 guests was held in the Holy Cross school hall from 10 a.m. until noon. Pink and green were the colors used in decorating.

Leonard Klein, Mendota, baked, cut and served the wedding cake, assisted by Mrs. Elnora Near, Mendota, and Miss Eleanor Widolff, Dixon. Mrs. Donald Rich served the punch and Mrs. William Garland served coffee. The Misses Annabelle Sloter, Lois Jacobs and Janet Kidd opened the gifts. Miss Lois Kreiser was in charge of the guest book. All of the above are from Mendota.

Dinner was served in the home of the bride's parents to 50 members of the immediate families.

Near Sublette

When the newlyweds departed for a wedding trip, the bride donned a charcoal grey, flannel suit trimmed in aqua. Their first residence will be a farm north of Sublette.

A 1952 graduate of Mendota high school, the bride has been a stenographer with H. D. Conkey and Co., Mendota. The bridegroom, who attended schools in and around West Brooklyn, spent two years in service, 18 months in Korea.

Fulton Girl Bride of Robert Powers

Frances Kustes Dons Lace, Tulle For Wedding Day

Residing in Dixon, 1026 Highland Av., are newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Powers. Their wedding, a November event, took place in the Immaculate Conception church, Fulton, Ill. Rev. Myles T. Callahan officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mrs. Powers is the former Frances M. Kustes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward Kustes, Fulton, and the bridegroom is a son of Mrs. Michael Powers, Dixon.

Mrs. Gloria Birt, Fulton, was nuptial organist and Miss Mae Kustes, Fulton, aunt of the bride, soloist.

Waltz Gown

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a waltz-length gown of Chantilly lace and nylon tulle, styled with a mandarin neckline and long sleeves, tapering to points over her hands. The bouffant skirt of nylon tulle was covered with an overskirt of lace. Her fingertip veil of pure silk illusion was held in place by a crown trimmed in seed pearls and iridescent sequins.

Miss Dorothy Kustes, Fulton, served her sister as maid of honor. She wore a mint green lace and tulle gown, styled with a strapless bodice that was covered with a matching lace jacket.

The bride's mother wore an aqua dress with black accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore black accessories with her navy dress. Their corsages were of pink carnations.

Ivan Sharkey, Dixon, served as best man and ushers included John Kustes, Fulton, brother of the bride, and E. H. Metzler, Dixon.

Reception

A wedding breakfast was served in the home of the bride's parents to members of the bridal party. An afternoon reception was also held in the home. Dinner was served to the immediate families and bridal party in the American Legion clubrooms, Fulton.

When the newlyweds departed for a wedding trip to southern Illinois and Missouri the bride was wearing a navy blue suit with matching accessories and a red rose corsage.

A graduate of Fulton Community high school, the bride attended Mount St. Clare college, Clinton. She has been employed in the engineering department of General Electric Co., Morrison. The bridegroom, a Dixon high school graduate, served three years in the U.S. Army. He is now employed by the Public Service Co.

Shiny Styles Also Wash

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

The glittery look, often reserved for holidays only, is everywhere this year. Gold and silver shine on dresses, shoes, hats and gloves. The Oriental influence, including the "cloth of gold" look, is a vibrant influence on dress-up fashions.

Fortunately, the golden touch is more practical than it used to be. Such fashions used to mean "wear 'em until they're dirty," then throw them out. Some, notably the metallic threads of the '30's or thereabout, developed an awful odor with wear. Now, fabric makers have conquered these difficulties and the gold look is odorless and, best of all, much of it is washable.

Naturally, these fabrics that are marked washable don't go into the machine. They should be dipped in and out of suds, not rubbed, wrung or twisted. They should be hung to drip dry. When dry, they should be pressed with a cool iron, with a sheet of clean tissue paper in between as a pressing cloth.

It is more essential than ever to save the washing instructions that come with these clothes. If, by chance, these tags are missing from some of the garments when you're buying, be sure to pick one that has a tag.

Many of the gold-touched cottons, cotton-acetates, nylons and other blends can be washed in the same manner as the un-adorned fabric. But gold-woven scarves, hostess aprons, overskirts, blouses and dresses of the more fragile fabrics need the gentlest of washing.

One rule that applies to all glittery fashions is to wash quickly when they get soiled or the dirt will become ingrained.

The second annual Marriage and Home Conference, under the direction of Rev. Howard Weeg, Chicago, will be held in St. Paul's Lutheran church, Dixon, from 5 until 9 p. m. Sunday, Dec. 11. Reservations for the ham supper are to be made by calling 2-5553 or 3-2393 before Friday noon.

Dixon Audience Enjoys Program Of Violin Music

By BEVERLY J. STROUSS
Society Editor

An evening of outstanding entertainment came to Dixon Monday in the person of Jeanne Mitchell, violinist. The talented young woman, in presenting the second of this season's Dixon Civic Music Association concerts, completely captivated her listeners.

Last night's audience well knew that their artist believed with all her heart in the music she was playing. Her selections gave the concertgoers a chance to cultivate their taste in good music.

Accompanied by Phyllis Rappeport, pianist, Miss Mitchell presented a program to delight the musical tastes of the entire Civic Music membership. Her repertoire was as follows: Praeludium and Allegro in E minor (in the style of Pugnani)—Fritz Kreisler; Concerto in E Major (Allegro, Adagio and Allegro Assai)—Johann Sebastian Bach; Sonata in A Major (Allegretto ben moderato, Allegro, Recitative-Fantasia and Allegretto poco mosso)—Cesar Franck; Rondo—Mozart; LaFilie aux Cheveux de Lin — Claude Debussy-Hartmann; Chants d'Espagne (Montanesa, Tonada Murciana, Saeta, and Granadina)—Joaquin Nin-Kochanski and Dance, from "La Vida Breve" — Manuel de Falla-Kreisler.

A Picture to See

Just as her music was pleasing to the ear, the youthful Miss Mitchell, gowned in a lovely shade of blue, was a pleasure to the eye. That she had won acclaim from her local audience was displayed in the great ovation of applause as she closed her program. For encores she presented the Ballet Music from Rosamunde by Schubert and arranged by Kreisler, also "Perpetual Motion" by Novocek.

Concert ushers were Mr. and Mrs. John Hawley, the Misses Martha and Alice Meppin and E. M. Bastian, Dixon, also Miss Ina Reed, Polo.

Perfume That Clings

Q.—Dear Penny: I adore perfume, but for some reason or other its fragrance just does not last on me. I have told several of my friends that I want a new perfume, but first I must find out about a lasting one.—Mrs. A. W.

A.—A particularly good idea for women who claim that perfume does not "stay with them" is a Liquid Skin Sachet. It smooths on the skin very easily, and lingers longer because of its sachet base. It has a slower rate of diffusion and evaporation than any other type of fragrance and was originated by Houbigant. Try their Chantilly Liquid Skin Sachet. Only $1.85 plus tax at

GM Extends Agreements With 17,000 Retailers

One-Year Pact Criticized During Public Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Harlow H. Curtice announced today that General Motors is immediately extending its sales agreements with its retail dealers from one year to five.

The president of the nation's largest manufacturing corporation announced this major policy change as a Senate Judiciary Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee resumed public hearnigs on GM operations. The committee is making what it calls a case study of the huge industrial firm.

Curtice said the 17,000 GM retail dealers throughout the nation were receiving telegrams announcing the policy change.

Policy Criticized

The one-year dealership agreements previously had been sharply criticized as one-sided by former and present GM dealers in testimony at the hearings.

Curtice said "The public has been grossly misinformed by widespread publicity given to the misleading statements made by witnesses, including the few complaining dealers who have appeared before this committee."

The GM president said the longer sales agreements were decided upon because of this misunderstanding "and the possible damage to General Motors good will."

Sen. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo), acting chairman at the GM inquiry, immediately congratulated Curtice for what O'Mahoney termed "compliance with a suggestion I made."

But O'Mahoney said the longer term agreements did "not relieve" other complaints on GM policies. The senator said GM could still cancel sales agreements without cause.

Special Laws

As a result, he said, some 20 states have passed special laws "to protect dealers who have invested large sums of their own funds."

Some former dealers have told the senators of abrupt cancellations after long dealings with GM, on GM complaints of unsatisfactory volume and other grounds. They have complained of pressure to take models and accessories they did not want.

More than 20 GM vice presidents and executives accompanied Curtice to the Senate committee hearing today as they did last Friday.

O'Mahoney told Curtice and the others that apparently the dealer complaints were "not known to the high command of General Motors" until the committee's hearings.

Object to Pressure

O'Mahoney said the dealers object to "pressure to sell cars" which cannot be absorbed on a "sound financial basis."

Curtice in announcing the sales contract change said relations between GM "and the vast majority of its 17,000 dealers are on a very high level."

He said the contract with dealers "has had long experience" and proved very satisfactory to the dealers and GM.

He said most dealers have worked with General Motors for many years but this is not understood by the public.

Feels "Impelled"

Because of widespread publicity of the Senate inquiry, Curtice said, "I feel impelled to do what I have not considered necessary heretofore—namely, to formalize a continuing long-term relationship with our dealers, which for all practical purposes has been in effect in General Motors for many years."

Curtice then read the telegram which he said was going to all GM car and truck dealers today.

Curtice said any GM dealer "can still terminate this five-year agreement at any time on 30 days notice if he chooses to do so."

Bureau county gambler and his alleged influence in Springfield, has repeatedly popped up in connection with the suspension.

Stratton's Views

Gov. Stratton, in a statement Monday denied he ever received a campaign contribution from Cassiday or that he ordered immunity for Cassiday "or any other gambler."

At a news conference, the governor labeled as "completely false" a Chicago Sun-Times story which said Harry A. Cassiday of Spring Valley visited the governor and State Police Chief Phil M. Brown in 1954 to seek immunity from state police action.

"I'm the man who ordered him put out of business," Stratton said. "Since then, he has been raided consistently."

"He never gave me a penny in his life," the governor declared in reference to a statement in the story that Cassiday told State Police Capt. Henry Engstrom in the presence of witnesses that Cassiday contributed $5,000 to Stratton's 1952 campaign.

Never Saw Him

Stratton said he had "never laid eyes" on Cassiday since he's been governor. When a Sun-Times reporter said he saw Cassiday present at Stratton's weekly open house in 1953, the governor replied:

"It certainly isn't my recollection. If it was open house, we have no protection on who comes through."

Later in the news conference, Stratton said he may have met Cassiday "over the years but I've met about everybody in the state."

"The thing that makes me so furious," he added, "is to try to say that the governor is trying to protect gambling anywhere, when the opposite is true."

Engstrom said today that he intends to deny "some but not all" of the detailed charges against him during his hearing tomorrow.

He flatly denied that he ever refused to give Lt. Cramer command of District 1 (Sterling) as charged.

In answer to the second charge concerning "coarse, profane and abusive language" against three District 1 officers, he said, "I may have used some cuss words but I meant nothing vicious or out of order."

He explained, "I was sick and tired of Sgt. Schermerborn loafing and not doing his share of the work.

"Lousy Record"

"He (Sgt. Schermerborn) has a lousy highway activity record and I thought he should be an example to the other men," he added.

Engstrom said, "I am accused of saying 'I've had enough of this - - - - - - - stuff' to Sgt. Schermerborn."

Lt. Cramer, who is named in two of the four charges against Engstrom, told an Evening Telegraph reporter recently, "I have been informed not to release any information that does not come from Springfield."

In addition to the Bureau county raid, Engstrom participated in a gambling raid on Amboy last spring. Four convictions resulted from the raid. It was made in cooperation with county authorities.

Engstrom, who formerly commanded state police in the Chicago area, was transferred to Sterling on Sept. 15, 1953, as commander of Districts 1 and 7.

The districts include the counties of Carroll, DeKalb, JoDaviess, Lee, Ogle, Stephenson, Whiteside, Winnebago, Bureau, Henry, Knox, Mercer and Rock Island.

British

barge permits no longer were required. The Soviet authorities were informed at the same time that the British themselves also would waive the need to sign permits for barges entering the British zone.

No Interference

Since that time, the spokesman said, there has been no interference with the normal movement of barges by the East Germans.

Barge traffic from West Germany through the Communist zone into the landlocked Allied enclave in Berlin is important chiefly because it is the chief means of bringing in coal.

British officials said their arrangements with the East Germans on control of barge traffic does not imply any recognition of the Red government. Similiar technical agreements on other interzonal communications already exist.

Khrushchev Again Attacks 'Colonialism' by Big Three

RANGOON, Burma (AP) — Nikita Khrushchev again directed barbs at British, French and American "colonialism" at a political rally held today in the Burmese capital's city hall.

"Colonizers can in no way reconcile themselves to the loss of their positions in the Southeast Asia and Pacific Ocean region," Russia's Communist party boss said to a polite Burmese audience of 3,000, mostly women.

The rally was sponsored by the ruling AFPFL (Anti-Fascist Peoples Freedom League) party. Premier U Nu, as party president, presided.

Khrushchev asked British journalists why they felt offended when some facts of the past were recalled. He said "not a single burgeois journalist would dare raise his voice against certain actions of some persons in England, France and America.

"The colonial system is collapsing in spite of the desperate efforts of colonizers to save their domination in countries which they exploit," Khruschev went on.

Offering economic aid to Burma, Khruschev said the Russians appreciated the aspirations of people who freed themselves from colonialism.

In a pointed reference to the United States, he "condemned" the policy of certain farm surplus countries which he said intended to take advantage of Burma. He assured the Burmese that Russia, although not a purchaser of rice in quantity, would do everything to purchase more Burmese rice of which there is a large surplus."

Turning back to World War II, Khruschev said "much more blood was shed by the Soviet people than by all our allies put together."

Quiz Michigan Man in Slaying Of Three Boys

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—Authorities today questioned a 23-year-old Michigan man arrested on a traffic violation charge in connection with the October slaying of three Chicago boys.

Police Chief James Parker of nearby Holly, who arrested him, and two state police detectives said there was no evidence to link Owen Robert Moser of Fenton, Mich., with the slaying.

Moser is held in Oakland County jail on a charge of possessing an unregistered firearm. Parker said he found the gun in Moser's car when he arrested him on the traffic charge Saturday.

Parker said Chicago police were "mistaken" in reporting he had told them Moser had signed a statement admitting the triple slaying and added, "I don't know where they got that idea."

In the Area

"Moser has admitted he was in the Chicago area about the time the boys disappeared, and he has admitted picking up two or maybe three boys and taking them for a ride," Parker said. "We think he may know more than he's telling, but that's all he has told us."

The three boys—Robert Peterson, 14, John Schuessler, Jr., 13, and his brother Anton, 11—disappeared Oct. 16. Their bodies were found in a forest preserve ditch Oct. 18.

Parker said Moser admitted living in a rooming house in Homewood, Ill., 25 miles south of Chicago, and working in a coffee shop there from January to mid-October, when he left for Fenton, Mich.

Denies Connection

State Police Detectives Charles Leif and Melvin Kaufman said he specifically denied any connection with the triple slaying.

The 17-year-old youths held in a robbery investigation by Chicago police were cleared in lie detector tests Monday of any connection with the killings of the three schoolboys.

The youths held without charge for questioning about gas station robberies are Paul Goetz and Thomas Miezo, both of Chicago.

Dulles' weekend statement drew particular criticism in India.

Many Indians interpreted this as meaning the United States was siding with Portugal which has declared its determination to hold on to Goa despite Indian claims to it.

Dulles stuck by his statement, issued with Portuguese Foreign Minister Paulo Cunha. He said that under the Portuguese constitution the inhabitants of Goa are Portuguese citizens as are the inhabitants of two other small Portuguese territories on the Indian west coast and of Macao, off the China coast.

Not Taking Sides

Dulles said his remarks did not mean the United States was taking sides in the quarrel. What he was trying to emphasize, he said, was that the United States opposes use of force to settle this dispute or any other where claims conflict.

His weekend statement, he said, was carefully considered and was directed at the hatred and prejudice Soviet leaders seemed to be stirring up.

Khrushchev before leaving India said Portugal's refusal to surrender Goa was a "shame toward civilized people." Bulganin said Russia supports India's "right to oust" the Portuguese.

Musical Drunk Raids Tavern

A break-in at the County Line tavern, formerly known as the Club 30, was reported today but the only things missing are five fifths of liquor and an electric guitar.

Sheriff John Stouffer said entry was gained by removing a 18 by 12-inch pane of glass from the front door and unlocking the door from the inside.

Anthony Celetti, employe and former owner of the Club 30, discovered the burglary about 11 a.m. It occurred sometime between midnight and 11 a.m., according to Stouffer.

The guitar was taken from the basement. The tavern is licensed to Russell Stevens. It is located east of the Lee-Whiteside County line on Rt. 30.

Bruxism Afflicts Most of Us, Says Dental Authority

NEW YORK (AP)—Are you afflicted with bruxism?

A leading dental authority says most of us are. He rescribed the affliction as an unconscious grinding and clenching of the teeth.

Dr. Thomas E. J. Shanahan, Brooklyn dentist, told the Greater New York dental meeting Monday that nervous tension brings on bruxism. He said the affliction goes on to produce more worries, including loosening of the teeth and gum infections.

The dentist says the condition, which often is accompanied by teeth clicking sounds irritating to others, is on the increase. He blamed fatigue and inadequate recreation as factors contributing to tensions that produce bruxism.

Dr. Shanahan suggested "letting the lower jaw hang slack in repose, with the lips closed, between meals, often helps the patient overcome that habit."

32 Servicemen Killed During Big Maneuvers

FT. POLK, La. (AP) — Exercise Sagebrush, America's military rehearsal for an atomic war defense, killed 32 of the 140,000 servicemen taking part in the huge maneuvers.

Fighting in this country's biggest war games since World War II ended Sunday night. The Army and Air Force is moving most of the 110,000 soldiers and 30,000 airmen to their regular bases.

The Army said most deaths came from car, truck and tank accidents.

Umpires decided Sunday night that the U. S. troops in Exercise Sagebrush had successfully repulsed an invasion by "aggressor" forces. This ended the fighting phase of the maneuvers, which took place on seven million acres in western Louisiana.

NAACP Leader Found Beaten, Burned in Texas

SCHULENBURG, Tex. (AP)— The beaten and burned body of the president of the local chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People was found at his farm 20 miles west of here Monday.

Sheriff L. O. McGinty said he was unable to establish a motive for the slaying of Herbert Johnson, 60, who also was commander of the Schulenburg Negro American Legion Post. The sheriff said Johnson apparently had been hit on the head and burned with his automobile.

Johnson had some money with him, but the sheriff didn't know how much or whether it was sufficient to provide a motive.

Johnson's wife, Naomi, 57, found the body after he failed to return from the farm where he had gone to feed the stock Sunday.

Johnson, well-known in the area, was janitor for several buildings, owned his farm and livestock and did some livestock trading.

Medic To Be Arraigned For Murder

CHICAGO (AP)—A 43-year-old physician is to be arraigned Wednesday on a charge of murder in the death of his 37-year-old wife whom he admits beating after giving her a sedative, nembutol.

The physician, Dr. Hobert H. Todd, did not testify Monday at the inquest into the death of his wife, Hazel, whose body was found in a bedroom of their Georgian-style home in suburban Skokie Saturday night.

One of the witnesses, Diane Dinsmore, 16, Mrs. Todd's daughter by a previous marriage, told the coroner's jury that she was in the house all day Saturday and that she heard no commotion.

Asked by Coroner Walter McCarron: "Did your folks have any trouble?" the self-possessed girl replied: "Would you make that more specific. I would say no."

It was disclosed at the inquest that Todd had a bruise on one arm and red marks on his chest when police arrived at the home Saturday night. The body of Mrs. Todd was lying between twin beds. Police said that Todd, incoherent, was sitting on one bed.

The officers quoted Todd as saying he slapped his wife after she slapped him during an argument about family finances, that he left the bedroom and on his return four hours later found that her body was blue and stiff.

Before the inquest was adjourned to Dec. 28 to permit pathologists' reports, it was brought out that Mrs. Todd, the former Mrs. Arthur Dinsmore, of New York, was Todd's fourth wife.

Russians Pay Taxes on Long Island Estates

MINEOLA, N. Y. (AP)—The Russian government has paid, under protest, delinquent taxes on two Long Island estates used by its diplomatic staffs. The tax bill totalled $24,272.

With checks for this sum, the Russians Monday, sent Nassau County Treasurer H. Bogart Seaman letters saying they would ask United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold "to obtain from the appropriate authorities of the United States recognition that the property is exempt from taxation."

The Russians have constantly objected to paying taxes on their Long Island properties. They should be exempt, the Russians claim, under terms of the United Nations Charter and the headquarters agreement between the United States and the United Nations.

Nassau County and the communities of Glen Cove and Upper Brookville, where the estates are located, have refused to recognize the Russian claims.

Texas Murder Trial First On Television

WACO, Tex. (AP)— A jury starts hearing today the courtroom story of the auto bomb murder of a wealthy Texas ranchwoman in what may be the nation's first televised murder trial.

The jury, qualified for the death penalty, was completed Monday to try Harry L. Washbur, 39, in the slaying of his former mother-in-law, Mrs. Helen Harris Weaver, 51. She died at San Angelo, Tex., Jan. 19, when she stepped on the starter of the family car.

Judge D. W. Bartlett gave Waco station KWTV-TV permission to cover the trial because he said telecasting "is the coming thing and TV should be allowed in courtrooms provided it does not distract from court proceedings."

Bill Stinson, the station's news director, said that "To the best of my knowledge this will be the first time for live telecasting of a murder trial anywhere."

Stinson said Judge Bartlett granted the permission after conferring with prosecuting and defense attorneys.

Washburn, a Houston contractor, has been held without bond since his arrest last Jan. 29. He maintains he was 400 miles away at the time the life was blasted out of the member of a prominent West Texas ranching family.

The state contends that the bomb trap was set for Mrs. Weaver's husband, Harry, because he had prevented her from giving money to Washburn.

Reds Scold AP, Times Dispatches

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Foreign Ministry has accused the Associated Press and the New York Times of "gross distoritions" in dispatches concerning recent official criticism of Russian architect Alexander V. Vlasov.

Leonid F. Ilyichev, head of the Foreign Ministry's press department, called Richard K. O'Malley of the AP and Welles Hangen of the Times to his office. He said they had stated falsely that Vlasov sad been fired and deprived of his medals.

"Such behavior is incompatible with the normal state of affairs," Ilyichev told the two newsmen, "and can only compromise the American agencies and papers represented by the correspondents."

He warned that "adequate measures" would be taken if there were similar future occurrences.

A dispatch from the AP's Moscow bureau Nov. 9 quoted a decree by the Russian government and Communist party as saying Vlasov had been fired as Moscow's chief architect and stripped of his decorations. The next morning the Soviet Academy of Architecture was asked if the Vlasov named in the decree and who lost his job was the Russian architect then touring the United States. The reply was affirmative.

The Times was one of the newspaper which published the AP dispatch.

The decree was the first public indication that Vlasov was no longer Moscow's chief architect. But the text of the decree showed Vlasov was criticized only in the preamble and that he was not among the architects specifically mentioned in the decree as having been stripped of their medals and fired. However, the decree did identify him as a "former" chief architect of Moscow.

Gas Mileage goes up AGAIN

And so does the thrill -with Buick's new Variable Pitch Dynaflow!*

WITH ALL the big excitement of Buick's 1956 styling and power and ride and handling—it's easy to overlook this fact:

Gas mileage in the '56 Buicks takes a big step upward.

One reason, of course, is the new power plant itself.

Every new Buick cradles an advanced 322-cubic-inch V8 engine with the highest horsepowers, Series for Series, in all Buick history. Yet every engine delivers more efficiency, and more usable power to the rear wheels—because each one has a new double "Y" manifolding, and a new high in compression ratio.

But the major reason for the happy news in gas mileage—and for the new step-up in safety and thrills—is Buick's latest version of Variable Pitch Dynaflow.

In this airplane-principled transmission, you always had a gas-saving cruising range—and, at a switch of the pitch, a full-power getaway range.

Now Buick engineers have brought to this cruising range what they call "double regeneration." It simply means a new way to make flowing oil add to its own velocity to build up driving force.

So now, you merely nudge the pedal to part throttle and get new breakaway getaway. And since you get this quicker, safer response in your normal cruising range—where you don't use full power—you get plenty more miles from every tankful of gas.

But when you do need sudden safety-surge for emergencies, you just floor the pedal to switch the pitch. Instantly, you're at full-power acceleration—and it's the most thrilling safety measure in the land.

How about coming in to try the most modern transmission yet? The absolute smoothness of this new Dynaflow is worth a visit in itself. So you can be sure you're in for a wealth of wonderful surprises—for that's just the start of the best Buick yet. Can you make it this week?

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflow is the only Dynaflow Buick builds today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century—optional at modest extra cost on the Special.

'Honus' Wagner, All-Time Great, Is Dead

Shortstop Was Legend In Baseball

Played More Major League Games Than Anyone in History

PITTSBURGH (AP) — John Honus Wagner, all-time great shortstop who became a legend, died in his sleep today.

Members of the family were at the bedside of the 81-year-old famed ex-baseball player when he passed away at his suburban Carnegie home, only a few miles from Forbes Field, where he achieved lasting fame with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

'He just slept away," a member of the family said

Honus had been in poor health several years Two months ago he slipped and fell in his home. He had been bedfast since and went into a coma about 10 days ago.

Called Greatest

Wagner, sometimes called the greatest player in baseball history, was a bandy-legged barrel-chested Dutchman He finished a 21-year major league career in 1917 with a lifetime batting average of .329.

His records are legendary. They go like this:

He played more games than any other National Leaguer in history—2,785 And he held many other National League records. He had the most times at bat—10,427. He made the most total hits—3,403. He made the most one-base hits—2,431, the most doubles—648, the most triples—250. He batted 300 or better for 17 consecutive years and led the National League in hitting for 8 years.

And Honus stole six bases in a World Series—another record.

Wagner was one of the first players elected to baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N Y.

Ed Barrow, late president of the New York Yankees and the man generally credited with "discovering" Wagner, flatly declared Honus was the greatest player in baseball history.

Was 5-11

In his prime Wagner was 5 feet, 11 inches in height and weighed 200 pounds His long arms and bow legs led Lefty Gomez, one-time New York pitcher, to say Honus was the only shortstop who could tie his shoelaces without bending down. He was a coal miner at 12. Later he joined an older brother in the barbering business but another brother, Al Wagner, got him an offer of $35 monthly to play baseball

It wasn't long before Wagner's agility in the field and sharp eye at the bat became known throughout the baseball world. In 1897 Barney Dreyfuss, owner of the Louisville (Ky.) Colonels, purchased his contract for $2 200 Three years later Dreyfuss moved his National League franchise to Pittsburgh and Wagner went with him.

$300 a Month

Wagner didn't earn as much as the major leaguers who followed him. He drew $300 a month his first year with the Pirates, $5 000 a season for the next five years and a top of $10 000 in 1908 And, unlike some major leaguers to follow him, Honus once refused a $10 000 contract He said he figured $7.500 was all he was worth.

After his retirement as an active player, Wagner operated a sporting goods store in Pittsburgh for several years But baseball—active baseball—was in his blood and he returned to the Pirates as a coach in the 30's He served in that capacity until the club put him on pension in the winter of 1951.

Ray's Advantage Is Psychological

Trimmed Bobo Twice; No Domestic Worries

CHICAGO (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, the 35-year old challenger, may be the underdog, but he has some psychological advantage in his middleweight title bout with champion Carl Bobo Olson, Friday night

Youth prevails for Olson, who has an eight-year age edge at 27 a factor making him a 3-1 favorite

Yet Robinson approaches the fight knowing he twice whipped the balding titleholder from San Francisco and also that his domestic scene is tranquil.

Olson has been training for his fourth title defense with his wife seeking a divorce certainly a disturbing circumstance although the stocial Bobo doesn't know it. Robinson is here with his wife and 6-year-old son.

Furthermore Olson still has to convince a lot of experts that Archie Moore didn t hurt more than his jaw with a third round knockout in Olson s abortive attempt to capture the 175-pound crown

Olso has had two 10-round victories over a pair of journeymen pros, Jimmy Martinez and Joey Giambra, since that blasting by More. Bobo looked anything but impressive against Giambra, taking a close decision.

Olson's loss to Moore at New York last June 22 was only the second time in his career he has been knocked out. The other time was by Sugar Ray, who halted Bobo in the 12th round of their first meeting at Philadelphia Oct. 26, 1950

Statistics Show Navy's Air Power

NEW YORK (AP)— Air power played an important role for Navy the past college football season and, despite crushing setbacks by Notre Dame and Army, the Middies wound up with honors in passing offense and defense.

Final statistics compiled by the NCAA Service Bureau showed today that Navy topped all major-college teams by hitting on 116 passes in 195 efforts for a 595 percentage. The Middies also gained the most ground, 1.666 yards, the most yards a game, 185 1, and had the lowest percentage of interceptions, .041.

On pass defense, Navy shared the top performances with Florida and Nebraska. Florida yielded the fewest yards a game, 42.0, Navy was next with 43 0 followed by Nebraska with 43.8.

The Midshipmen, however, limited the enemy overhead advance to the fewest total yards, 387, and were the only one among the major schools to hold opponents under 5 yards an attempt, 3 83. Nebraska broke a 10-year record by restricting its rivals to a .272 completion average.

Stanford, and Hardin-Simmons finished behind Navy in passing offense, averaging 160.5 and 151.6 yards a game, respectively.

Denver threw the most touchdown passes, 19, and yielded only one.

The 19556 season was the first in history in which every major team threw at least one touchdown pass and also gave up at least one.

Holy Cross lost 25 passes by interceptions to lead in that department. Ohio State had the fewest, three.

Aubrey Ties Irish Mark In Scoring

Freeman Scores 40 But Buckeyes Lose To Vanderbilt U.

CHICAGO (AP)—Wisconsin's previously beaten Badgers, vowing to gain stature in the Big Ten this year, won their first game of the season Monday night by defeating Notre Dame, 70-66, but two other conference teams went down in defeat.

Northwestern suffered its second straight loss, bowing before Kansas 91 70, while Ohio State was beaten by Vanderbilt, 76-67, despite a 40-point spree by All-America Robin Freeman

Aubrey Gets 35

Center Lloyd Aubrey tossed in 35 points for Notre Dame and tied the Irish individual scoring mark but couldn t offset the scoring power presented by Wisconsin s Dick Miller, John Parker and Curt Mueller Miller had 25 points, Parker 15 and Mueller 10

Freeman scored more points than the rest of his teammates but was no match for the Vanderbilt squad which had four men count in double figures

It was Ohio State s first loss of the year after an opening victory over Butler.

Northwestern took an early lead over Kansas and battled the Jayhawkers point-for-point until Kansas took a 44-32 halftime lead. Dick Mast again led Northwestern with 20 points while Glen Lose counted 18

6 5 Record

The two losses and one victory gave the Big Ten a 6-5 advantage over non-conference foes in early season play.

Illinois is expected to improve on the mark when it opens its season against Butler tonight at Champaign. The Illini, along with Iowa, are ranked top contenders for the Western Conference title

National League Draws Less, But Majors Increase

CHICAGO (AP)—The National League Monday announced a 4 per cent decrease in its 1955 attendance but there was a rise for the major leagues over 1954 thanks to a tight race in the American League

NL clubs in 1955 drew 7 674 412 fans compared to 8 013,519 in 1954, a decrease of 339 107

Nevertheless, the majors had an increase of 4 per cent since the American League has a 12 9 per cent increase over 1954.

AL figures announced after the end of the season, showed an increase of 1.020 607 with crowds of 8 942 971 in 1955 compared with 7,922.364 in 1954.

Philadelphia, Chicago and Brooklyn did better in 1955 than in 1954 in the NL while the other clubs slipped

Major League Trades Loom

White Sox Reported in Midst of a 'Big Deal'

CHICAGO (AP)—Trade winds blew hot at the opening of major league baseball meetings Monday with at least five clubs bartering for the services of some 25 players No deals were made but possibilities were strong that once one deal was consummated, others would follow

The New York Yankees and Washington Senators huddled on a possible deal involving Maury McDermott, star Washington lefty

The Chicago White Sox and Baltimore Orioles were reported "close" on a deal which, if made would also involve the Cleveland Indians.

The main target of the White Sox was pitching. Such names as Jim Wilson Baltimore pitcher, and Art Houtteman, Cleveland right hander, were tossed around

The Sox reportedly were willing to part with power hitters Walt Dropo and Bob Nieman infielder Carl Peterson, catcher Earl Battey and pitchers Sandy Consuegra and Morrie Martin.

Cleveland was rumored to be interested in Dropo and Nieman to supplant power they sacrificed when they swapped outfielder Larry Doby for shortstop Chico Carrasquel and outfielder Jim Busby

Talks on a possible 15-man deal between New York and Washington were rescheduled for today However, none of the Yankee regulars were involved.

Still another possible trade was reported by Detroit Manager Bucky Harris. Harris said "I think we'll make one tomorrow. No big names but it'll enable us to plug a few holes"

Western Forfeits Normal Game; Ineligible Player

MACOMB, Ill (AP) — Western Illinois of the Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Monday forfeited a Nov. 4 football game to Illinois Normal.

The action resulted from a protest over the use of an ineligible player

Quarterback Sam Esposito of Western recently was declared ineligible for the 1955 season by the IIAC s Eligibility Committee. Esposito played junior varsity ball at Western last year after playing three years of varsity football at North Dakota State

Western beat Normal, 32-13

Western officials said they were forfeiting the Normal game because Normal was the only team to file an official protest.

Esposito also played against Eastern Illinois and Southern Illinois Western beat Eastern, 13-7 and tied Southern, 13-13.

If Southern protests and the tie is forfeited, Southern then could claim a share of the title already shared by Central Michigan and Michigan Normal.

Dilemma of Radio, TV Nags Majors

Frick Tells of Policy Rebuff by Justice Department

CHICAGO (AP) — Commissioner Ford Frick admitted today that baseball's radio and television dilemma was as acute as ever following a rebuff by the Department of Justice of a plan that would have given the sport "ground work" to follow in formulating a definite policy on radio and TV.

Fricks' remarks highlighted the opening activities of the major league baseball meetings

"We talked with the Department of Justice and proposed a test case which would have given baseball ground rules to follow in dissemination of games by radio and television ' Frick said Monday at a press conference

We said 'Why don t we pass a rule which we think is reasonable and fair and you (Justice Department) will sue us immediately and get an injunction that will stop the rule from operating and thus avoid any possibility of triple damage suits by individual stations Then, by mutual agreement, whoever loses will carry the case to the Supreme Court for a final decision '

"At first they were agreeable to the proposal but a week ago last Friday (Nov 25) they said they had reconsidered and were opposed to it "

Frick tried hard not to appear irked by the adverse decision of the Justice Department and even took great pains to make sure his remarks would be construed as a "gripe' against the government

"We had an idea and it didn't work out," he said. "We'll have to come up with something else "

Frick did not go into details regarding the majors' proposal to the government but it was believed the plan called for restriction of telecasts and broadcasts of big league games outside a club s home territory limit of 50 miles

The majors had planned to offset that by telecasting a "game of the week" over a national channel This plan, if consumated, would have brought in $3 000 000, half of which was to have been ticketed to the minors That proposal too, reportedly was rejected by the Justice Department.

Texas Aggies Big Surprise Of Grid Year

By The Associated Press

The Texas Aggies, the pre-season choice to occupy the cellar in the Southwest Conference, caused more eyes to pop and eyebrows to rise than any other football team in the nation during the 1955 season. They did it merely by stepping out in front at the start of the season and staying there almost until the last game had been played.

Only one other team even came close in the balloting to pick the biggest surprise of the season. That was Michigna State, which also went far beyond pre-season expectations. Of 149 sports writers and broadcasters replying to the annual Associated Press post-season questionnaire, 58 named Texas A & M and 37 tabbed Michigan State.

Notre Dame drew seven votes for its surprising good showing and Army six for its failure to live up to pre-season forecasts.

Dons Gain Top Rung in AP Polling

By The Associated Press

Free-wheeling San Francisco, bidding for a second straight NCAA basketball championship after soaring out of virtual obscurity a year ago, gained an overwhelming vote of confidence today from the nation's sports writers and broadcasters.

The Dons, first in the Associated Press preseason poll, were again rated the nation's No 1 team.

They won both their games last week and streiched their winning streak to 28.

San Francisco s 63 first-place votes gave them almost a 200-point edge over second-place Kentucky. The Dons collected 1 0523 points, figured on a basis of 10 for first, 9 for second, etc. Kentucky pulled in 847, North Carolina State 550.

Kentucky, with a 1-0 record, and N. C. State, with a 2-0 mark, each gained seven first-place votes. Iowa, the defending Big Ten champ and 1-0 to date, polled 19 first-place votes, but fell down in the other listings to finish fourth, just two points behind the Wolfpack.

Utah, Alabama, Dayton, Illinois, Duquesne and Brigham Young round out the top 10. Only the Illini have yet to make a debut and that's scheduled for tonight against Butler.

Duquesne, the NIT champ, got started Monday night, thumping Carnegie Tech 61-25.

Seven of the top 10 are holdovers from last season's final poll, which listed San Francisco, Kentucky, LaSalle, N. C. State, Iowa, Duquesne, Utah, Marquette, Dayton and Oregon State.

No Surprise; Nashua Best Three-Year-Old

MIAMI (AP)—Not that it was any great surprise, but mighty Nashua was chosen 3-year-old champion race horse today by the Thoroughbred Racing Associations' board of selectors with an overwhelming vote.

The big bay colt from the Belair stud of the late William Woodward Jr., who lost the Kentucky Derby in an upset to California's Swaps, but turned the tables later in their great match race, received 37 of a possible 40 first place ballots. Swaps, owned by Rex Ellsworth, got the other 3.

Taxes, Investors Play Big Roles

On Them Depend Future Expansion of Industry

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal tax policies and the urge of the American citizenry to save and invest may play a large role in setting the pace of the growth of the nation's ability to produce goods and services.

If our living standards are to continue to rise, we'll need more facilities—and costlier ones.

Glowing predictions of business expansion in the next few years are often heard these days. But it will take money.

Several Sources

The corporations now planning to increase their facilities can raise the funds from several sources.

They can borrow from the banks insurance companies, and the like. But these institutions get their money from the savings of individual citizens.

Corporations can sell securities to the public. But this depends upon the yen of Americans to save and to invest.

Corporations can use their depreciation funds or their retained earnings (profits they don't pay in dividends). And here, federal out in dividends). And here federal tax policies will play a role.

"The corporate income tax is so high now that it plays a large and unhealthy part in virtually all business decisions whether to invest or not to invest money," a study of federal tax policy by one group in the Commitee for Economic Development points out today. "It is capricious in its impact on individuals, whether they are viewed as stockholders or buyers of the corporation's stock."

CED's businessman group urges Uncle Sam to take only half of corporate companies earnings instead of 52 per cent as at present.

Estimates Vary

Industray's need of new money for expansion are widely estimated. Philip D. Reed, chairman of General Electric, thinks the need will be so high that corporations will have to find a stockholding public of 40 million persons, instead of the present 10 million or less.

Business has been tapping the investors' hoards at a great rate this year, the Northern Trust Co., of Chicago points out that its business comment for December, out today. It estimates that the total of new security offerings of corporations this year will reach 8½ billion dollars.

Draft Official Pleads Guilty to Soliciting Bribes

CHICAGO (AP)—Two former members of Chicago draft board 25 have pleaded guilty in federal court to indictments charging illegal activities.

Allan K. Wattman, 65, former board chairman, entered his plea to an indictment charging he solicited a $200 bribe to arrange a deferment into the armed services.

Another former board member, Thomas J. Slattery, Jr., 44, pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with casting a vote illegally to defer an associate from military service.

Judge Philip L. Sullivan deferred sentencing.

He Explains The Lipstick

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Albert Goudal, 93, who claims service in Indian, Spanish-American War and Mexican campaigns, came to San Francisco Hospital as a traffic casualty.

Knocked down by a car, he had a broken arm, a black eye and lipstick prints on his bald head.

Explaining the lipstick, he said, "I was just having a nightcap in the neighborhood tavern.

New State Office Building Opened

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Open house was held Monday night in the state's new 11½ million dollar eight-story office building in Springfield.

An estimated 7,500 people filed through the modern concrete and glass building.

Secretary of State Charles Carpentier, in chef's uniform, served Gov. William G. Stratton the first bowl of bean soup.

The building, under construction for 23 months, was occupied earlier this fall. Stratton called it the "most modern office building of any state in the Union."

Sea 'Whatsit' Washed Ashore In California

VENICE, Calif. (AP)— A marine "whatsit" washed ashore Monday. It is 16 feet long, has a head resembling a snake's, a fin tail, and, when it was alive, perhaps a week ago, must have weighed about 800 pounds.

Old-time mariners and lifeguards say they think it is a sea serpent.

"I've lived around the ocean for 18 years," sadi Norman Bishop, former lifeguard, "and I've never seen anything like this thing, whatever it is."

USC Bills UCLA For Paint Damage

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The University of Southern California has sent a bill for $583 to its crosstown rival UCLA for damage caused when someone dumped blue paint on USC bandsmen during the school's annual football game last month.

The paint was dumped from atop a Coliseum tunnel as the band passed below. Said UCLA Dean of Students Byron Atkinson Monday:

"The only clue that UCLA had anything to do with the halftime prank is a Bruin rooter's cap."

The Associated Students at UCLA, where school colors are blue and gold, say they'll pay only if proof is given.

Soviet Army Lieutenant Flees Russia

BERLIN (AP) — A Soviet army lieutenant in full uniform fled to West Berlin and asked the United States for political asylum, the U.S. Army disclosed today.

The Army identified the man as Ivan Vacelevich Ovchinnikov, 26.

The Russian came to the West on the city elevated train and got off at the first stop in the American sector Monday.

He turned himself in to the West Berlin railway police who in turn delivered him to American authorities.

"He asked for political asylum and this was granted," an Army spokesman said. "He stated that his request for asylum was based on political reasons."

The Russian was flown to West Germany immediately and held for screening by U. S. Army intelligence officers.

Ovchinnikov is the first Soviet officer to defect to the American forces here in recent years. A lieutenant turned himself in to the British last March. Since 1945, Red army defections to the west have totalled about 200. The highest ranking man was a lieutenant colonel who came to the British in Hamburg four years ago.

U.S. highway maintenance and construction costs have doubled since 1941.

Union Leader Denies Welfare Fund Graft

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Chicago labor union leader told Senate investigators Monday there's nothing irregular about his handling of union welfare funds, placed with an insurance firm which he heads.

Angelo Inciso, president of Local 286 of the AFL United Auto Workers Union, testified before a Senate Labor subcommittee which had cited him for contempt for not responding to two earlier subpoenas.

Inciso said employers contribute about $200,000 a year to the union's insurance fund, managed by the American Continental Insurance Co. Under questioning, Inciso said he runs American Continental as its board chairman.

The subcommittee planned later to question Angelo Doria, financial secretary of the UAW-AFL international, about the finances of the Chicago local.

Inciso conceded the local union does not keep books on its finances. Funds are handled through a voucher system, he said, with vouchers being made out when money is received or spent.

The vouchers are forwarded to Doria, who makes an annual accounting, Inciso said.

Employers contribute $9.15 a month for each union member they employ, Inciso testified. He said $5.15 of this is for the insurance fund, $3 for dues and $1 for the union's general account.

The "One-Fifty" 2-door sedan—one of 4 models in Chevrolet's smart and sprightly "One-Fifty" series.

It's one of Chevrolet's New "ONE-FIFTY" series . . . the lowest priced of all the high-priced-looking Chevrolet series for '56. But you'd never know it to look at that speedline chrome treatment or to feel that new power ranging up to 205 H.P.

There's so much fresh new styling in the "One-Fifty" it's hard to believe the car costs so little. It has new chrome—including both windshield and back window reveals—and its own distinctive two-toning. It stretches long and clean from grille to taillights (the left one hides the gas cap). It offers new power, V8 or 6, steering and handling ease few cars can match, plus all of Chevrolet's great performance and safety features. Directional signals and safety door locks are standard equipment. Seat belts, with or without shoulder harnesses, and instrument panel padding are available at extra cost. Truly, the "One-Fifty" represents more quality than before. Come in soon and let us tell you its big secret—its low price tag!

On The Rural Scene

With JIM SOMERS

Lee County Farm Adviser

Lee County farms are getting larger. From 1950 to 1954 the size increased 3.7 per cent. The number of farms decreased 3.3 per cent in this same period of time.

There was also 14.3 per cent increase in the value of land and buildings during this same period. In 1950 the average value, not including machinery and livestock, was $41,396. In 1954 this value was $55,878.

According to last year's agricultural census 96 per cent of Lee County farms were electrified, 83 per cent had piped running water, 82 per cent had telephones, 66 percent had deep freezers, and 60 percent had television sets.

Seventy-six per cent of the farms had no horses or mules.

Lee County ranks 99th in the state in number of dilapidated buildings still in use. It ranks 96th in vacant and abandoned buildings.

It appears as if the average Lee County farmer enjoys a high standard of living. Farmers have used the good years following World War II to acquire some of the things that make for better living, to improve the fertility of the soil, and to get their buildings, fences, and machinery in good shape.

It is harder to measure the intangibles. We hope the educational, religious and cultural development of the county has kept pace.

* * *

Information received from the Illinois cooperative crop reporting service indicates that the average corn yield in this county this year was 62 bushels, according to preliminary data, this is 7.2 per cent less than last year. The state average this year was 56 bushels. Last year it was 49.5 bushels.

* * *

We checked with state police headquarters on the regulations concerning turn lights on trucks. When the distance from the center of the steering column to the edge of the cab, truck bed, or the load on the truck, is 24 inches or more, turn lights are needed. This measurement does not include rear view mirror, fenders or running board.

Turn lights are also needed if the distance from the center of the steering column to the rear of the truck or the load is 14 feet or more.

The prospects for a big corn borer population next year are very good. It takes unified effort to get the best control. Be prepared to adopt the following control practices: (1) Clean-plow all corn land. If plowing is not feasible, disk or shred stalks thoroughly. (2) Avoid unwarranted early planting of corn. (3) Use hybrids adapted to the area. (4) Use insecticides if it becomes necessary.

There were 519 borers per hundred stalks of corn in the county as of Oct. 1, 1955. The population has been gradually building up since 1951.

Farm Woodlands Can Be Profitable If You're Careful

DIXON SPRINGS—Include your woodland in your over-all farm management plan.

A woodland can be a profitable farm area if you have one on your place, says F. W. McMillan, assistant in forest research at the Dixon Springs Experiment Station of the University of Illinois.

McMillan points out that more than 10 per cent of the total land area in Illinois is forested and that 90 per cent of this timber is farmer owned. You can increase the production and income from your farm woodland with proper management.

First, McMillan suggests that you keep all livestock out of your woodland. Grazing woodlands destroy natural reproduction of trees and compacts the soil. Soil compaction results in less vegetation, more water runoff and less water-holding capacity. Most woodland forage is either unpalatable or so sparse that grazing animals gain little or no weight.

Then, protect the woodland from fire. A good blaze will destroy small trees and severely damage or destroy large ones. Resulting loss of vegetation also increases soil and water loss.

Next, improve the stand by taking out cull trees that will not produce at least one salable 8-foot log, wolf trees that have large crowns and limbs that take up more space than their growth justifies, trees damaged by weather, fire, insects and disease, poorly formed trees and undesirable species.

Finally, improve the stand and maintain its high quality by following a planned cutting schedule.

Proper woodland management not only will add another earning agent to your farm business, but will encourage wildlife conservation and give you a beautiful place to picnic and enjoy nature.

FOR IKE—Henry A. Wallace, former Democratic vice president, favors the re-election of Republican President Eisenhower next year. He says the President is "America's best hope for continued peace." Wallace now considers himself an "Independent."

Seen on the Farm

By Norm Krouse

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE EXTENSION SERVICE

THE ILLINOIS SEED LAW

A new law, passed in 1955, requires annual state permits for selling agricultural seeds. The fee is one dollar and the permit expires on June 30. The only exception is the farmer who sells seed which he produced—provided he sells it on the farm or premises where it was grown.

A separate permit is required for each store or place of business selling agricultural seed or offering it for sale for seeding purposes. However, no permit is required if the seed is obtained in packages from a distributor holding a permit. All permits are issued by the State Department of Agriculture.

The purpose of inspecting and regulating sellers of agricultural seeds is to prevent the sale of seed that has a high percentage of weed seed and to provide the purchaser with accurate information on germination, variety and the seller's name, address and permit number. All of this information must be placed on a label or tag and attached to the package or sack of seed.

It's Illegal

It is illegal to sell seed containing any primary noxious weed seeds, including Canada thistle, leafy spurge, Russian knapweed, perennial sow thistle, field bindweed and hoary cress.

There are tolerances for secondary noxious weed seeds. If the tolerance is exceeded, then the weed seed or seeds must be listed on the tag. Secondary noxious weeds are curled dock, wild garlic, dodders, bull nettle, buckhorn, quack grass, wild mustard, Johnson grass, oxeye daisy and wild carrot.

No permit is needed to sell vegetable seeds, and the tolerances for secondary noxious weed seeds do not appy to vegetable seeds. However, vegetable seed must be labeled to show kind and variety, name and address of seller or person who labeled the seed and percentage of germination if the seed does not meet standards set by the Department of Agriculture.

Germination tests for both agricultural and vegetable seeds must be made within nine months of sale, not counting the month in which the test was made. False labeling, false advertising, secondary weed seed in excess of 1 to 1,000 agricultural seeds, and weed seed in excess of 2 per cent make sales illegal.

Good for Trees

Steep slopes, land low in fertility and isolated corners cut off by roadsand ditches are areas where trees will be profitable and help save soil, says a University of Illinois extension forester.

Current Price of Soybeans Shows Low Product Value

By L. H. SIMERL

Forecasting soybean prices has been both easy and difficult: Easy, because in most of the past 25 years prices have advanced substantially after harvest. Difficult, because soybeans are a new crop and production has increased rapidly, because domestic demand for soybean products is quite variable, and because foreign buyers sometimes come into the market for a large share of the crop.

A year ago the average farm price for soybeans in Illinois was around $2.64 a bushel. The price held around this level from October through January, climbed up a little in February, and then worked down to an average of $2.03 by mid-September. About that time drouth damage to the crop set off a sharp price advance, but most of this advance was soon lost.

There is no surplus of soybeans. The carryover of old beans on Oct. 1 was only ten million bushels, or 3 per cent of the previous crop.

Crop Larger

The 1955 crop is estimated at 372 million bushels. This crop is 10 per cent larger than the previous record crop of 1954 and 56 per cent greater than average. Remember, though, that record-breaking soybean crops are the rule rather than the exception.

A price support loan at a national average of $2.04 a bushel is available for 1955 crop soybeans. Prices have been at or above the loan level since harvest time, so few beans are being placed under the loan.

Prices of soybean products are sharply lower than they were a year ago. Soybean oil recently was quoted at 10¾ to 11 cents a pound compared with 11½ to 11¾ cents the year before. Since a bushel of soybeans yields about 11 pounds of oil, the oil in a bushel of beans recently was worth around $1.18 compared with $1.26 a year earlier.

Meal Down

Recent quotations on soybean meal were around $47 to $48 a ton, down from $70 last year. A bushel of soybeans yields about 48 pounds of meal, worth $1.15 compared with $1.68 a year ago. These prices and values are wholesale, bulk, Decatur.

At these recent prices the value of the products obtainable from a bushel of soybeans is $1.18 worth of oil plus $1.15 worth of meal, or a total of $2.33. This product value may be compared with some recent prices of around $2.10 paid to farmers for soybeans. The difference, only 20 to 25 cents, compares with about 30 cents a year ago and is only half that prevailing in some years. Expenses that must be paid from this small difference include local handling, transportation and processing costs.

May Increase

Domestic demand for soybean oil may increase. But the production of the principal competing products, cottonseed oil and lard, will be about 10 per cent greater than last year. One strong point: the government does not have big stocks of cottonseed oil as it had a year ago.

Demand for soybean meal may increase. Good prices for eggs mean good demand for meal from owners of laying flocks. On the otherhand, there may be some cutback in the demand for soybean meal from producers or broilers and hogs.

Foreign buyers took 60 million bushels, or 17 per cent, of the 1954 soybean crop. With lower prices now, foreign buyers are expected to take around 75 million bushels of 1955 crop beans.

Exporters also took 36 million pounds of soybean oil in the year ending with June, and they have taken much larger amounts so far this year.

Seldom Fatal

A University of Illinois veterinarian says that winter dysentery in dairy cows seldom causes death, but it may cut milk flow to less than half of normal.

Study of Dairy Herd Improvement Association records shows that high-producing cows are the only ones dairymen can afford to own.

Lumbermen Hear About Farm Planning

URBANA—More than 100 Illinois lumber dealers and materials industry representatives discussed farmstead planning problems at the 12th annual Farm Structures Day program at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture.

As part of the morning program, J. T. Clayton, assistant professor of agricultural engineering at the College, showed the group pictures taken on 10 problem farms as an indication of the building improvement needs: Later, in the afternoon session, the dealers suggested solutions for rearrangement on two of these farms.

Better farmstead organization is often one of a farmer's urgent projects and one of his most baffling problems, Clayton said. Most needed changes center around modern facilities to store and handle crops, house and care for livestock and find better ways to handle feed.

Big Problem

And in his remodeling or new building plans, every farmer faces the big problem of making his new facilities flexible enough to meet changing conditions in the future.

Deane G. Carter, professor of farm structures at the College, who presided at the meeting, pointed out that dealers and rural builders need to be aware of trends in annual building design. Then they will be ready to give practical advice on up-to-date needs and not sell their customers outmoded buildings.

Dominant trends in farm buildings are toward more versatile improvements that are lower in cost, more convenient for farming operations and better fitted to change with the times, Carter said.

Another morning-session speaker, R. N. Van Arsdall, USDA agricultural economist at the college, told the lumber and material dealers that they have one of the best opportunities to help livestock men develop an efficient feed-handling system. They are on the scene, so to speak, during planning and throughout the building of shelter and feeding centers.

Changing Ways

Design, plan and choice of equipment help or hinder feeding operations, and it is here that you either gain or lose efficiency, Van Arsdall said. But mechanization is not always the answer. Many farmers have improved their efficiency by changing their ways of handling and storing feeds. The right combinatiaon of building, method and equipment is what makes an efficient unit.

To start the afternoon session, the dealers visited the agricultural engineering research laboratory on the University campus to see a demonstration of wind loads on farm buildings, feeding equipment research and new plans and publications.

Other speakers on the program included J. O. Curtis and F. W. Andrew, staff members of the Department of Agricultural Engineering at the university; D. G. Jedele, Iowa State College; and C. A. Kincaid, of the Portland Cement Association.

Final session of the day was the workshop in which the entire group of dealers analyzed the problems involved in rearranging two of the farmsteads they had seen in the morning.

Things to Do

Things to do to get ready for spring tree planting include ordering the trees early, fencing the planting area, building fire breaks and arranging to get the planting work done.

Con Man Adds To String of Convictions

CHICAGO (AP)—George Wilson, 71, an old con man, has added two new convictions to his string.

Police said Wilson's record shows convictions for operating a confidence game, robbery, burglary, picking pockets, short-changing, shoplifting and counterfeiting.

He has been arrested in Chicago, Chicago Heights and Aurora, Ill.; Cleveland; Rochester, N. Y.; Omaha, Neb.; West Palm Beach, Fla.; Indianapolis; Pittsburgh and Sheboygan, Wis.

He has used many aliases in his career starting in 1901.

Monday, he was convicted before Municipal Judge John R. Sweeney of impersonating a policeman and attempted extortion, and sentenced to one year in the Cook County jail. He also drew a suspended $1 fine.

Wilson was seized Friday on the complaint of Edward Halman, 54, a clerk at the Moody Bible Institute. Halman testified Wilson accosted him Thursday near the International Amphitheatre and announced Halman was "under arrest" on suspicion of "molesting women." Halman could, however, said Wilson, postpone a trip to the police station if he could "dig up $500 bail."

Halman later telephoned police, who told him to comply with any instructions given him. Wilson telephoned him Friday, Halman said, upping the "bail" to $1,000 and setting up a meeting.

The arrest followed. A companion of Wilson, Patrick Dwyer, 68, was fined $200 and costs on a charge of disorderly conduct.

British Angered By Red Speeches

Churchill Suggests Canceling of Tour

LONDON (AP)— The British-Russian word war over speeches by Nikita S. Khrushchev and Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin in the Far East continued unabated today.

Pravda, former Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill, and British Minister of State Anthony Nutting were the latest to sound off.

Addressing a rally of Young Conservatives at Woodford, England, his parliamentary constituency, the 81-year-old Churchill said he thought the British government should "seriously consider" canceling the projected visit of Khrushchev and Bulganin to Britain in April. He qualified this by saying Britain should not "take any violently rapid decision" on the question.

An "Exhibition"

Referring to anti-British remarks by the two top Russian leaders, Churchill termed their current Asian tour an "exhibition --there is no other word."

"It certainly has been a surprising spectacle and one which Her Majesty's government will no doubt study carefully before they allow it, with suitable variants, to be repeated here," he said.

Prime Minister Eden extended an invitation to Khrushchev and Bulganin at the summit conference in Geneva last July. No specific date has been set.

Churchill cautioned his audience that the behavior of the Soviet leaders "must not lead up to suppose that Russian power and capacity are not growing in many other directions."

Attack British

In their swing across India and Burma, the Russian leaders have made numerous attacks on the British, who formerly ruled those two countries. On one occasion Khrushchev said the British sat "on the necks" of the Burmese before Burma got independence. On another occasion he said:

"They (the British) made profits while you starved. As representatives of a European nation, we are ashamed about what those other Europeans did before."

In India, Khrushchev accused the British, French and Americans of unleashing the German attack on Russia in World War II.

Nutting, chief British delegate to the United Nations and a leading spokesman on foreign affairs, called the Soviet leaders' remarks in Asia "childish nonsense."

Blast Press

From the Russian side, Pravda blasted the British Foreign Office and press for making "indecent sallies" against Bulganin and Khrushchev. Deputy Editor Yuri Zhukov, writing from Taunggyi, Burma, accused American, British and French correspondents accompany the two Russian leaders of "foul intentions" in reporting the tour.

"One may agree there are some in London who do not like at all tse fact that the peoples of the former British colonies are establishing friendly relations with the Soviet Union," Zhukov's article in the Soviet Communist party organ said. "But this cannot be an excuse for indecent sallies which the unified monopoly press and even official spokesmen are making so often."

Ex-Convict Tells How He Strangled Former Landlady

CHICAGO (AP)— An Ex-convict has admitted slaying his former landlady because "she ran me out when she found some oscene literature in my suitcase," police said.

The body of Mrs. Ruth Beal, 50, was found Friday in the bedroom of her suburban Harvey home by her husband, Harry, also 50.

Capt. Michael Spatz said Steve Pafco, 34, walked into a South Side Chicago police station Monday and said:

"I'm Steve Pafco, the man you're looking for."

Spatz said Pafco, an ex-convict, related:

"I went back there to pay for a telephone bill I owed and she started to raise the roof with me again. She kept it up until I lost my temper. I didn't use anything on her but my hands. I killed her with my bare hands. I was so mad I even ripped off her clothes. I ripped them to shreds and started to wreck the house. When I calmed down I got on out of there as fast as I could."

Pafco was held without charge pending further questioning.

Buster Keaton, Comedian, Ill

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Buster Keaton, 60, the comedian with the deadpan expression, lay in critical condition today in a veterans' hospital, suffering from a gastro-intestinal ailment.

He has been hospitalized since last Saturday. A hospital official said a hemorrhage had been stopped but Keaton has been in a coma part of the time.

Born in Piqua, Kan., the comedian went into vaudeville and came to Hollywood in 1917, rising to stardom in the silent movies. In recent years he has been a guest star on many television shows.
